Jeremy Goetz 4th period—Personal Finance Final Pt2

Finding Happiness in you career.

In short

- Make sure you are doing something you love
- Make friends at the work place.
- Do your best to make more money
- Take Part in company activities, such as casual Friday
- Take it easy!
- Have a good relationship with your boss

Happiness and working for some people may be two completely different areas. It is VERY important for you to have fun at your job and your career field if you wish to live a full life with less stress and more money.

If you are doing something you like or love you are off to a good start. Working in a field that you hate is only going to make your life worse.

Make Friends with the people you work with. Office rivalries are not a good thing and can ruin your entire career. Sure the occasional spat won't mean anything, but the more people you know, the more people that can amuse you when your bored.

One easy fix to any problem earning more money. Set your goals on making more money and eventually your hard work is going to pay off. Bosses and CEO's like hard working employees, if they see you working non-stop you just may be invited to the pool party on the top floor on Saturday.

Being social and apart of company activities can really boost your morale around the work place. Taking part in casual Friday shows that you are apart of the team! And that you are willing to be apart of the company, which shines you in a good light.

Most importantly, when it comes to career happiness, is take it easy! Relaxing leads to less stress when working and in the long run increases the length of time you are going to live. Everybody wants to live longer, so why don't you? Just follow these steps that have been covered and you'll have your PhD in Career Happiness!

Your boss and you

If you befriend the big man upstairs then you could be on the runway to major success.

All bosses have rooftop pools and Jacuzzis that peon workers are not supposed to know about.

If you get on the bosses good side you could very easily be invited up there. Be warned though; there are plenty of things to do when invited to the bosses rooftop pool. I recommend showing up in a tuxedo, but wearing swim wear underneath. It shows you are professional at every hour of the day...bosses respect that.

Tips on what to do will be continued in our next issue.
